What is eLibrary?

eLibrary is an online research tool consisting of reference material from newspapers, magazines, books, websites and transcripts.

- Basic Search

  Conduct a basic search if you have a topic: paying college athletes

- Don’t have a topic for your paper? Try these suggestions:

  Limit your search to resource type or select them all.

  Browse by topics such as Arts, History, Social Science. This is useful if you are unsure of what keywords to use.

  This link leads you to an A-Z list of potential research topics. Examples: academic dishonesty or reality television.

Created by Anicia Kuchesky, updated 06/08/2015
• Viewing a document

Click on any title in the search results list to view the full document.

Click here to print, cite, email, or export.

Language tools: Listen to the document or translate the document.

• Finding more articles with your keywords

View the next document in your search results, browse through your search results, or find similar documents in eLibrary.

Created by Anicia Kuchesky, updated 06/08/2015